

Project Director

Vandis has specialist facilitation skills to achieve business and technology outcomes within the most diverse and complex business environments.

We undertake the role of project director as a contributing expert facilitator ensuring the broadest business outcomes of our executive sponsors.

We are experienced in bringing together disparate teams of stakeholders with widely dispersed viewpoints and various degrees of technical understanding to work constructively and effectively on common objectives.

A combination of our pragmatic business ethic, skills in demystifying and communicating technical issues, understanding of the viewpoints of the various participants, project management discipline and a passionate energy for achieving outcomes has enabled us to achieve remarkable results.

Call to discuss how Vandis can help you to realise benefits from your critical technology projects, your complex projects and your technology reliant business initiatives.